RAFTING AMONG THE PIENINY MOUNTAINS

Rafting down the Dunajec River is one of the oldest attractions in the region, dating back to the 18th century when raftsmen began transporting goods down the river. Over time, the rafts filled with tourists, a tradition that has survived to this day.

The river flows through the Pieniny National Park, and the route delights with views and legends, such as the one about the enchanted monk turned into a rock, Czertezik, who guards the mountains to this day. During the rafting, the raft glides lazily between steep rocks, and raftsmen in folk costumes tell stories about ghosts, robbers and secrets hidden among the trees.

The route is about 18 km long and lasts over 2 hours, but time flows differently here. You can admire Trzy Korony, Sokolica and the picturesque bends of the Dunajec River, which have delighted artists, hikers and lovers for centuries.

Rafting on the Dunajec River is the perfect opportunity to relax, enjoy the silence and feel the magic of the mountains from a completely different perspective.

At the pier you can buy souvenirs, take a picture with a raftsman or relax in the shade of the trees. The trip ends in Szczawnica – a charming town with many cafes, trails and attractions. It is a perfect ending to a day full of excitement, close to nature and mountain tradition, which has been attracting tourists from all over the world for years.

Interestingly, the name "Slovak Paradise" is not exaggerated – in the past, these areas were called "Dziki Wąwóz", but due to their beauty, the name was changed to a more romantic one and appropriate to the surroundings.

CONTRAST OVER THE YEARS

Budapest is a city of contrasts – modernity meets history, and everyday life meets the elegance of past centuries. Situated on the majestic Danube, it delights both during the day and after dark, when the bridges and monuments are illuminated by magical light. Walking along Andrássy Avenue, you can feel the spirit of the 19th-century metropolis, and the view of the Parliament from the deck of a ship on the Danube will remain in your memory for a long time.

Budapest also tempts with its flavors – local cuisine with goulash, langos and tokaj is a feast for the senses. Thanks to the proximity of Zakopane, it is an ideal option for a one-day trip full of culture, history and exceptional views. Everyone will find something for themselves here – from architecture lovers to those who simply want to feel the atmosphere of a big city.
